

Safe physiotherapy thanks to UVC air disinfection

In order to enable optimal treatment options, and make patients' visits to the physiotherapy practice "Das Physio-Team Puchheim" as safe as possible, the two managing directors Thomas Maderer & Jenny Habermann have developed a comprehensive hygiene plan.

In addition to the usual measures such as regular ventilation, protective masks for both employees and patients, and a hand disinfection dispenser, the employees disinfect the contact surfaces after each customer visit.

A SteriWhite Air Q115 from Dr. Hönle AG was purchased for air disinfection. The owners chose this device for a number of reasons. "Just put it down and switch it on. The device runs without any maintenance effort, with no filter to change, and the sound is imperceptible. Due to its compact and modern design, the device fits inconspicuously into our overall concept."

The practice sees itself well positioned now and also post-pandemic, and not just for corona but also for other viruses, such as influenza, and bacteria, to optimally treat their patients and other visitors.
